Arkansas Swept By Heavy Storms

Fall Crops Hard Hit By Terrific Storm Last Night

Little Rock and Helena Streets Flooded By Downpour.

PROPERTY DAMAGED

Check Up Will Reveal Extent of Damage In Many Sections.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 13.—Wind and hail storms swept widely separated sections of Arkansas last night, causing injury to one man and heavy damage to property and crops.

Hail smashed windows and stroped streets and the streets in Little Rock were flooded by the sudden downpour. The damage here, however, was slight.

Helena was struck by a heavy wind and electrical storm during which 2.25 inches of rain fell, the first precipitation of any importance in ten weeks. Streets there were flooded and telephone and power service interrupted for a time, skylights and windows broken and other damage resulting from the storm.

Lawrence Fischer, 23, was injured near Stuttgart when struck by flying timber during the storm which caused considerable damage in the city and in the rural sections. Ripening rice crops suffered from the hail.

Cotton and other fall crops were damaged by hail in Faulkner county where the heaviest fall hail storm in many years was reported.

Saenger Named In Damage Suit

Boy Suffers Broken Arm and Personal Injury Suit Filed.

Saenger theatre was named defendant in a personal injury suit for $3,000 filed this week for Eugene Jones, a minor, by his father and next friend.

The suit resulted from a fall in which the youth sustained a broken arm, it being alleged he was riding a hill-topper's car being operated by Saenger when the accident occurred. The case is in Circuit court and is not expected to be heard until the spring term.

New G. O. P. Boss To Visit Arkansas

Will Attend Meeting of State Republican Committee.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 13. Claudius Huston, newly elected chairman of the republican national committee, is expected to visit Arkansas at an early date to attend a meeting of the state republican committee, Wallace Townsend, national committeeman for Arkansas, announced on his return from Washington Thursday.

Mr. Townsend also said that Franklin W. Fort, member of congress from New Jersey and secretary of the national committee, will visit Little Rock February 12, to deliver an address at a Lincoln Day banquet.

Mr. Townsend also said that Kenneth, republican national committeewoman for the state, attended the meeting of the national committee at Washington Monday.

While in Washington, the Arkansas committeeman said he took up with the department of agriculture the proposal to establish a federal soil conservation station in Columbia county which would be headquarters for soil surveys in southwest Arkansas, and neighboring sections of Oklahoma, Louisiana and Texas. Officials of the department will visit Arkansas soon, he said, to investigate the project.

During their stay at the capital, Mr. Townsend and Mrs. Remmel were guests of President Hoover at a White House dinner and attended various other notable functions.

Circus King

John Ringling, above, is truly the king of the sawdust rings. Already owner of Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey, and the Forepaugh-Sells circuses, he recently purchased five more circuses—Sells-Floto, Hagenbeck-Wallace Animal Show, Sparks, John Robinson and the Al-G. Barnes Wild Animal Show. The purchase price was not named, but the deals followed failure of Ringling to reach an agreement with Madison Square Garden for performance dates in New York.

Former Hope Man Suicide Victim

R. L. Harmon Shoots Self At Home Near Ozan Early Today.

R. L. Harmon, for many years a resident of this county, living both here and at Ozan, committed suicide this morning at his farm near Ozan by shooting himself through the head with a shotgun.

Two weeks a barn in Mr. Harmon's place was destroyed by fire and this morning another barn on the place was struck by lightning and destroyed. Mr. Harmon had been in ill health for some time and it is thought brooding over his losses prompted the act.

Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Mr. Harmon was well known here and throughout the county, having for years been a cotton buyer located here. He lived in Hope during the past year, moving to his farm near Ozan this spring.

State To Make Big Cotton Crop

Old Bills Coming In for Payment, Though, Will Decrease Profit.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 13. (AP)—The record cotton crop which appears probable on the Tucker and Cummins farms has produced a record number of old claims, some dating back for 16 years. James L. Lawhorn, a member of the State Prison Commission, reported to the commission today.

"If all these old claims are allowed," Lawhorn said, "any profit the commission might make off the crop would be greatly decreased."

He reported that 1,000 bales of cotton have already been ginned from the two farms and estimated between 3,000 and 4,000 bales remain to be picked and ginned, by far the largest crop in the history of the farms.

Since it became generally known that the crop would be a good one claims against the commission have reached an almost unprecedented total. Mr. Lawhorn said.

Odorless Skunks Latest Miracle—Iowa Has 'Em

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 13.—The newest thing Iowa has to offer the world in the way of miracles is a quintet of odorless skunks.

Although parents still are reluctant in allowing their children to go near the cage, five skunks of the new variety are in the possession of the state game and fish department here. The animals can be handled without fear of having to bury reeking clothes and becoming a temporary outcast from society.

Hearty Welcome Extended To Good Will Tourists

Accorded Warm Reception At Various Points Visited.

TRIP OVER THURSDAY

Pleasant Greetings At Washington Mark Close.

Hope's annual good will tour was concluded at Washington late Thursday afternoon after a two-day swing around the circle, making one of the most enthusiastic and successful ventures of its kind in the history of the local Chamber of Commerce.

At every point visited by those who traveled the Boosters trail a warm welcome was extended and pledges of support to the Fair and in many cases to Hope institutions freely given.

At Magnolia A. & M. College the first day out the visitors were accorded a welcome that left nothing wanting. The same at Magnolia and at Stamps and Louisville.

On the second day's journey at Mineral Springs the trippers were invited to visit the schools and the Boys Band, heading the trip, played a concert in the school auditorium. At Nashville, Bert Johnson took them in town and played the genial host as he so well knows how to play it.

At Washington the ladies of the B. & P. W. Club took upon themselves the task of entertaining the visitors, the occasion there being an entirely pleasant one.

The making of the trip are confident that it will be productive of much good and that the Fair and the city as a whole will be benefited by it.

Moving Day Will Be Coming Soon

Several Business Houses To Shift Locations Soon.

Carpenters and decorators are at work on the building recently vacated by Dobson & Co., and the one vacated by Johnson, Billingsley & Riggsdill, putting them in shape for early occupancy by other tenants.

To Fair store goes into the building formerly occupied by Johnson, Billingsley & Riggsdill, while Ed Stewart, the jeweler, goes into the Dobson store. The Frigidaria people, D. B. Thompson & Co., it is said will occupy the place to be vacated by Stewart while the present Frigidaria stand will be used by Briant & Co., the stand now occupied by the last named to be filled by a new store, one of a chain organization coming in.

Women's Club Gives Cup To City's Model Hubby

CUSHING, Okla., Sept. 13.—A man who never drinks "more than enough," swears only in "the presence of ladies," drives a new Ford, uses tobacco in every form, plays a moderate game of golf and fills in at bridge only when forced to has been selected the "model" husband by the Cushing Women's Professional and Business Club.

Dwight Buell, the model, was presented a silver loving-cup by the club.

Chinese War Lord Guilty and Fined

Convicted of Accidental Killing of Young Prince.

OLDA, Japan, Sept. 13. (AP)—Chang Thang Chang, former Shanghai war lord, was convicted of accidental homicide in district court here today in connection with the death recently of Prince Hsien Kai, young Manchu, and fined 300 yen or about $150.00.

Prince Hsien Kai, who was a cousin of the former boy emperor of China, O'U yi was killed while visiting Chang's hotel in Beppu. Chang claimed that a gun he was examining in his room accidentally exploded, killing the young Prince.

Two Ambassadors of Good Will

"So you're going to Washington early in October? Well tell all the folks 'hello' . . ." That might have been what Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, right, was saying to Premier Ramsey MacDonald when this excellent picture was snapped. You see the celebrated pair as they attended ceremonies at MacDonald's home town of Elgin, Scotland. Unannounced plans had been made for the premier's good-will visit to the United States.

'Handy-Andy' Store Opens Saturday

R. L. Patterson Goes In for Modern Cash and Carry System.

Hope's newest and most modern cash-and-carry store, "Handy Andy," will open its doors to the bargain-loving public Saturday morning, R. L. Patterson, pioneer business man here, thus joining the ranks of modern, aggressive cash-and-carry merchants, and he extends to all old customers, his friends and the public generally an invitation to visit the place and pass judgment upon it.

"Handy Andy" is about the last word in an up-to-date grocery store. Convenient arrangement of merchandise, elaborate refrigeration, modern and strictly sanitary equipment, high grade merchandise—these combine to place this "Handy Andy" store up towards the head of the class.

Although "Handy Andy" is part of a chain, it is owned and operated by Mr. Patterson. It offers advantages for co-operative buying not available to an individual and Mr. Patterson realizes that this means an added selling advantage for the savings in purchasing he can pass on to his customers.

A visit to "Handy Andy" on opening day will be worth your while as it offers an opportunity to acquaint yourself with the most modern in grocery merchandising.

French Vineyards Suffer In Storm

Does Damage of Millions In Toulon District Is Report.

MARSEILLES, France, Sept. 13. (AP)—A storm of considerable intensity raging over Southern France last night probably damaged agricultural interests to the amount of millions of dollars. Damage to buildings, vines and the olive crop in the Toulon district alone will reach to more than a million.

The lower parts of Toulon and other cities were flooded and railroad communication between Marseilles and Nice was interrupted for hours. Many roads are impassable.

Farms Land for 50 Years But Can't Prove It's His

MARYVILLE, Mo., Sept. 13.—James M. Stephenson for fifty years farmed a 40-acre tract near here. But he cannot show that he owns the farm.

The original certificate was lost and Stephenson is now seeking to have the title cleared that he may show on "paper" that the tract is his.

State's Finances Show Up In Pretty Good Shape

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 13. (AP)—State treasurer Ralph Keane today certified to State auditor Humphrey a total of $72,366.01, severance tax collected by the state for last month, and warrants are being issued to the counties for their pro-rata share.

One third of this tax goes to county common school fund and the remainder to the state common school fund and the state common school fund.

Jury Convicts for Sunday Violation

Saenger Theatre Manager Is Fined $1 for Sunday Show.

A jury in Justice W. G. Bright's court Thursday afternoon returned a verdict of guilty, assessing a fine of one dollar as punishment for Jack Eaves, manager of the Saenger theatre here on a charge of operating his show on Sunday.

Attorneys for the defendant promptly gave notice of appeal and the matter will be threshed out in Circuit Court, probably at the April, 1930, term.

The complaint against Eaves was filed following a Sunday performance given as a Legion benefit.

Soviets Try To Discredit Church

Make Mockery of Religion In Nun-Priest Trial In Kiev.

BERLIN, Sept. 13. (AP)—Dispatches from Kiev, Russia, to the newspaper Lokal Anzeiger Thursday described how the Russian authorities there were taking the opportunity provided by the trial of the monk Tachun of the famous Pecherskaya monastery, and the Abbess Voronkova, charged with the murder of a nun, to bring the Christian religion into contempt.

The trial is being held in a circus building and posters announced Grand circus performance today. Murder trial of Monk and Abbess. Entrance free.

The arena wherein clowning usually played their tricks was turned into a courtroom, above which angled the ropes of the trapezes as a symbol of the probable fate of the accused.

Three thousand spectators filled the seats around the arena on the opening day of the trial.

Wholesale Murders Laid To Hungarian Midwives

Negro Smothers When Cotton and Seed House Burn

Had Reached Door But Was Unable To Open It Before Failing.

LIGHTNING IS CAUSE

Coroner Believes Building Ignited By Lightning Early Today.

One death is attributed directly to the violent electrical storm which raged here throughout the greater part of Thursday night, accompanied by a terrific rain.

Haley Gilmore, negro, aged 22, a cotton picker in the employ of Mr. Ervin, on the Hart farm, two miles southeast of Hope, was suffocated, a cotton house, half a bale of seed cotton and more than a bale of seed destroyed in a blaze at about four o'clock this morning.

The negro was sleeping in the cotton house. When Mr. Ervin, aroused by the flames, reached the scene and smashed the door, the negro was found lying against it. Only slight blisters were found on his legs, suffocation causing his death. Ervin dragged him out of the building, but efforts to revive him failed.

Dr. Weaver, coroner, and deputy sheriff Lewallen conducted an inquiry into the death but were unable to determine whether the building was struck by lightning and fired or whether the negro had lighted a lantern which in some way ignited the building and contents, though the former theory is held as most likely.

Here's One Man Who Makes Milk Pay Three Ways

Nearly two years ago Carl Richards picked up five heifer calves here and there, paying a reasonable price for them. They range in age now around two years each, and a brief check-up on Richards' investment is interesting. More especially since the use of skim milk as a fattening animal food is being discussed throughout the country.

Purchase price of animals with feed, pasture and dipping expense—in fact all expense incurred in handling—totals $207.00 up to September 1, this year. And on the receipt side we find this: $312.00 work of products; $50 offered for the five male calves and $70 worth of hog fed out on skim milk and whey, showing Mr. Richards a net profit of $225.00 up to September 1.

Which isn't more than half bad when you stop to consider his original investment is intact and growing in value and that each succeeding year will see a still greater income. All of which causes Mr. Richards to remark that milk and melons will put Arkansas not only on but all over the map if farmers would only realize it.

Commission Ready To Order Inquiry

Will Probe Death of Convict At Request of His Relatives.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 13. (AP)—The State Penitentiary Commission adopted a resolution today offering to conduct an investigation into the death of Walter Maxwell, prisoner at Tucker farm who died last week, if requested to do so by the youth's relatives.

The Commission also agreed to pay for a chemical examination of the youth's viscera which was recommended by Dr. H. W. Street, Lonoke physician, who examined the body at England at the request of Circuit Judge Waggoner.

Maxwell's death was reported by prison farm officials as due to poison which they said he had drunk, but relatives of the boy asked Judge Waggoner to start the inquiry to determine if death might not have been caused by a whipping administered at the farm.

Maxwell was sentenced to the penitentiary a short time ago from Searay county. He entered the prison with a certificate from a physician that he was unable to work in the fields but despite this was placed to picking cotton, his father advising he was informed his son was beaten because he could not pick 400 pounds of cotton daily.

Pulaski County Has Settled Up

Only One County In State, LaFayette, Behind With Treasurer.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 13. (AP)—Pulaski county completed a tax settlement with the state today by turning over $593,200.89, leaving LaFayette county as the only one in the state which has not made final settlement.

The settlement of Pulaski county brought to $5,010,717.31 the total state revenue from property tax from all counties and this will be increased by $1,100,000, the amount due the state from LaFayette, the total being $32,801,20 less than that of 1928.

Pulaski county had previously paid in $70,000. LaFayette has made a partial settlement and when that payment is completed school funds to the various counties will be apportioned.

Arrest Communists After Threats Made

Claim They Were Distributing Fire Arms To Strikers.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 13. (AP)—Charges of "conspiracy to overthrow the government" today were preferred by city officials against eight National Textile Union workers arrested last night.

The charge contained in the warrant was that the men were distributing firearms in furtherance of the alleged conspiracy. They were served just a few minutes before the time limit set by Judge Thomas Shaw, presiding over the Mecklenburg county Superior court for the charges to be filed or the men released.

THE WEATHER

Will Exhume the Bodies of Many for Examination

All Infants Buried Within Five Years Claimed Poisoned.

MIDWIVES ACCUSED

Medical Experts Say Poison Found In Children and Adults.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 13. (AP)—Courts in the district of Dyalnak today ordered the exhumation of the bodies of all infants who had died in the district for several years, after investigation by authorities of Nagyrev revealed that fifty adults and equally that many infants had been poisoned by midwives.

Medical experts had declared the death to be from natural causes but the chemical laboratory attached to the prosecutor's office affirm that the quantity of poison found in the bodies exhumed was larger than could have been absorbed from the soil in the cemetery.

A public sensation created by the news has grown hourly and has caused confusion between the prosecutor's office and the medical experts attached to the court.

Prisoner Finds Dishonesty Among His Jail Mates

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 13. (AP)—Mike Russell, 30, Wheeling, W. Va. in jail here charged with interfering with an officer learned that the hoosgow has no place to carry money—at least not $900 in bills.

When jailed Russell neglected to turn over his valuables to Jailer McConaughy. After spending a full hour at the mercy of "bull pen" prisoners, he announced that his roll, consisting of one $500 bill and four $100 bills, had disappeared.

Search of the 70 prisoners, and the bed clothing in the "bull pen" brought no trace of the money.

A Big Job Makes Progress

THE plan for an international automobile highway that will connect the southernmost tip of South America with the highway systems of the United States and Canada continues to make progress—slowly, but perceptibly.

The Second Pan-American Highway Congress, just completed at Rio de Janeiro, saw the project carried forward a good distance.

All Latin-American countries were urged by the congress to make surveys to determine their respective transportation requirements, and it was recommended that so far as possible each country improve first those roads that would link into the Pan-American highway.

These actions, to be sure were more or less routine. The encouraging thing was the atmosphere of the conference. South American delegates displayed a real enthusiasm for the project, and United States delegates report that the entire southern hemisphere seems at last aroused to the importance of the plan.

They whole New World would benefit by this proposed highway.

To the motorist of the United States and Canada it would open a vast new wonderland for travel and recreation—a touring ground incomparably the most magnificent in the world.

To the South American countries it would bring a share in the high degree of prosperity now enjoyed north of the Rio Grande.

Most important of all, it would do more to advance international understanding than all the Pan-American congresses ever held.

Peace and friendship between the nations of North and South America would be assured forever.

The sooner the highway becomes a reality the better.

Not Clippers

NEWSPAPER reporters usually are far more accurate than they are given credit for; but once in a while they misuse words dreadfully.

Not long ago, for instance, they reported the race of the Gloucester fishermen in their sea-going schooners as a race of "clipper ships."

The term clipper ship applies to a vessel as specialized and distinctive as a submarine. No genuine clipper has been built in this country for many decades. They flourished chiefly just before the Civil war, and they shed great lustre on American ship builders; and not one is sailing the seas today.

It doesn't really matter, of course—but, just to keep the matter straight, let's not call fishing schooners "clipper ships" any more.

A Wise Stand

FROM the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, one of the most prominent Protestant Protestant ministers in America, comes a remark that seems to us to express a good deal of wisdom.

Says Dr. Cadman, speaking of the theatre:
"I do not believe in denouncing salacious plays. It only advertises them."

Dr. Cadman has expressed a truth that has been known to theatre owners for years. When a producer stages an off-color play, nothing pleases him more than to see it under fire of preachers. That always means good box-office business.

Too often, however, ministers have failed to realize this—and, by doing what they felt was only right, have actually aided the thing they were trying to crush. Dr. Cadman's remark is a good thing to bear in mind.

The Real Heroes

THE recently-completed National Air Races at Cleveland were a stirring, thrilling spectacle, and the daring pilots who performed in them deserve lots of credit; yet, to our mind, the real aristocrats of aviation are men who did not figure in those races at all—the air-mail pilots.

The Lindbergs, Doolittles and others got the applause at the races; but while they were performing for the crowds, the air-mail planes were going through their regular routine, unhonored and unsung. And it is the airmail flyers, and not the famous stunt expert, who is proving that aviation has a genuine place in the national scheme of things.

The airmail flyer doesn't go to races and get medals. He just stays on the job and does his work—and does infinitely more for aviation than all the stunts that ever flew.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON—This is the latest Hoover story:

The president was talking, in humorous vein, to an old friend concerning some of the troubles of the presidency.

"There is one law I should like to see passed," he said, with perhaps an insufficiently concealed wistfulness.

"The president ought to be allowed to hang two men every year, without giving any reason or explanation for the sentence."

"Would two be enough?" the friend asked.

"Well, perhaps not," Mr. Hoover is said to have replied. "But I could get the word to 25 or 30 that they were being considered."

Anyone with an ordinary sense of humor ought to appreciate the fact that the three "bad boys" of the Hoover cabinet have inspired little but favorable comment during their first six months, while the two members who came in with the brightest halos have been making all the unfortunate breaks.

"Just politicians!" said the critics in disapproval when Mr. Jimmy Good, Mr. Walter F. Brown and Mr. Arthur M. Hyde became respectively secretary of war, postmaster general and secretary of agriculture.

But from all your correspondence can you name these "three bad boys" who have been performing most commendably? A least, they have all put in much hard work and study and have given no indication that they aren't anxious to distinguish themselves in the public service. Brown's reorganization program in the Postoffice Department, result of hard work and study, seems to be all to the good. The industry, tact and initiative of Good in the War Department have thus far aroused nothing but admiration. And Hyde already has converted some of his critics by his sympathetic and intelligent interest in some of their progressive pet projects.

On the other hand, take Charles Francis Adams, the blue-blooded, bald-headed Back Bay Bostonian, who is secretary of the navy, and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, the elongated, pontifical college president, who is secretary of the interior. Nothing but loud cheers greeted these appointments. Wilbur was lauded as a progressive of great wisdom and everyone admitted that Adams with his ancestral background and social position, was a distinct ornament to the cabinet.

But all of a sudden one found everyone laughing at Secretary Adams for the funny Boston speech in which he branded such Republicans as Senators Borah and Norris as traitors because they voted against the administration on the export debentures issue.

And then Ray Lyman began. He was found making decisions, with remarkable disregard for advisable research or even common caution, within a few days after he arrived. No one should deny him credit for tackling the Indian problem boldly, but his promise to "give the Indian a pickle" enraged many persons and he subsequently blurted out a promise to turn the Indians over to the states before people had any chance to whisper in his ear that, for innumerable reasons, the thing couldn't be done. Wilbur has dropped that idea, but more recently he was talking about delivering the national forests to the states and he has had a forge that, oo. Common opinion here is that true wise Mr. Wilbur will soon be cured of his impetuosity, for he is an able gent.

Connie Mack and his pennant-bound Philadelphia Athletics have lost one of their most faithful rooters—Connie Mack's daughter, Mary Corolla, 18, who daily sat in a seat back of the A's dugout and rooted for the Athletics, has entered the convent of the Sisters of St. Joseph at Philadelphia, where she was educated, as a novice to become a nun. While attending the convent school, she was prominent in athletics.

Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL - POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Helen Page feels unhappy when the girls at the boarding school take her about giving up dancing and parties and being Miss Simplicity just to please her handsome guardian, Leonard Brent, with whom they accuse her of being in love. And her roommate calls her a fool after they see him at the Ritz one day with another woman.

Realizing her school-girl infatuation for him, Brent exacts her promise to do anything he asks her to, and says he will tell her about her parentage after she graduates.

One day Brent spies a gold locket on a beggar who has fallen in an alley. He bends over to take the locket and hears mumbled words which cause him to try to save the old man. But he dies before Brent can verify any dates or facts except that his name is Charles Owens Nellin; that his wife is dead and that he has hidden his daughter from her wealthy grandfather, Cyril K. Cunningham, of Yonkers.

Posing at a newspaper man searching for story material, Brent learns much about the history and habits of the eccentric old millionaire from the corner store gossip who tells him that the daughter had eloped with Nellin and the father had disinherited her. He had heard that the mother was dead but did not know where the child Evangeline was.

Helen graduates and Brent says that he is now ready to reveal her history and the girl is amazed when he tells her that she is the heiress of Cyril K. Cunningham. He shows her the locket with a picture of Evangeline Cunningham in it and says it is her mother and that he had made her parents a solemn promise to educate her carefully and after she was grown take her to her grandfather.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER X
"Why, my dear," Brent said to Helen, "I've told you what I meant by that. It was only my crazy ideal that I could control you through force of habit. I thought if you would more readily consent to marry me."

His voice was thick with emotion, as though he made his confession by force of a tremendous will power. His acting was so clever that Helen sensed, as he hoped she would, his feeling of having blundered into a stupidity and his humility over it.

She sat very still for a moment, stirred by the emotion that rose within her own breast, savoring it, delighting in it.

But Brent's silence pressed her for an answer. She moved over closer to him.

"Leonard," she whispered, "it is the most natural thing in the world for me to do as you wish."

Her inference of surrender satisfied Brent. But his plans were to well laid to permit him to follow up the promise in her words. There must be, he conceived, a reluctance to accept her pledge. For it might possibly occur to her that his proposal had come upon the eve of her interview with her grandfather. If that interview should lead to a fortune for her Brent wanted to be above the suspicion of having shown an eagerness to share it with her.

"Don't say that," he said rather sharply. "You make me feel like a blackguard. I was planning to take advantage of your youth and inexperience, Helen."

Helen sat away from him. She was startled.

"I had no right to dominate you," Brent went on, with enough apology in his voice to imply that his abruptness was called forth by ing to do with my decisions," she said. "I think he will," Brent told her. "You're a lovely girl, Helen. I'm sure your grandfather will love you."

"Love me?" Helen repeated. "He couldn't expect me to return it." Brent offered no further comment on the subject and gradually they fell to talking of other things. Helen enjoyed the drive to the city, the approach to the heart of it down Riverside Drive and the slow progress through traffic to the hotel where Brent had engaged a room for her.

She was a bit disappointed that he had given up the apartment he had occupied until a few months previous. It had been a charming place, not too mannish for feminine taste. Helen had dreamed of keep-

And when Helen and Brent were shown into his private sitting room on the second floor he peered at them from dimming eyes with a feverish intensity.

Helen hesitated on the threshold, fighting to still the agitation that was causing her to tremble nervously. The room seemed to waver slightly and then her glance settled upon the aged man in the invalid's chair that was drawn close to a window.

His shrunken figure was lost in the folds of a loose dressing gown but the hands that rested upon the silver head of a heavy cane were evidence, in their frailty, of the man's feeble condition.

Helen did not, at that moment, feel pity for him. In spite of the picture he presented of belonging already to another world, she steeled herself to think only of her mother and the unhappiness she had known in this house.

The butler announced them and retired, but Brent noticed that an attendant whom he thought to be a valet or a nurse remained.

"Good morning, Mr. Cunningham," he said, advancing and bowing before the old man. He refrained from extending his hand; a point that did not escape Mr. Cunningham's notice.

Mr. Cunningham nodded and his own hands remained folded upon his cane. "Marks," he said to his attendant, "bring a chair close for Miss . . . Brent, I believe you said?"

Brent silently inclined his head, and waited until Helen was seated before speaking again. Mr. Cunningham was offering apologies for being unable to rise to receive her. Helen answered with a faint smile and left the conversation to apartments.

Of Helen's opposition to her grandfather he took but little count. She was an emotional, sensitive girl. Should the old man appeal to her sympathy and seek her forgiveness for his harshness to her mother, Brent had no doubt Helen would grant both in great measure.

And the best card in his hand, the ace with which he hoped to take the winning trick, was Helen's present bitterness over the treatment her mother had received. Nothing could better convince Cunningham, Brent reasoned, that Helen was not seeking his riches.

Brent thought always now of Helen as Evangeline Cunningham's daughter. Diamond Page and his wife were no longer in his memory. He had discarded them.

And Helen had accepted his story as true. It all fitted in so well with the past. She had grown up with mystery of her identity—a mystery that fired her with desire to solve it.

Now she was eager to do what she must to keep faith with her father's promise to her mother, and show Leonard how little she cared for her grandfather's wealth.

The day following their arrival in New York Brent drove her up to Yonkers and to Bramblewood. It was less dreary-looking than on the occasion Brent first had seen it. To Helen it was the home of her mother and she looked at it with reverence.

They had come unannounced. Brent had not trusted Cyril Cunningham to welcome them. Should they fail of admittance today he proposed to approach in a different way.

But Mr. Cunningham did not refuse to receive them. Their message, brought to him by the butler, was simply that they had information which they wished to deliver to him in person.

For many years Cyril Cunningham had been hoping to receive certain important information. His declining years were torn with a yearning that his stubbornness could not obliterate.

Few strangers came to his door, but those who did were welcome.

"My granddaughter!" It was barely a whisper, rather a thought that lived for an instant upon the air.

"Yes," Brent said. "Are you interested?"

his bad conscience.

"It doesn't matter that you wanted to do it," Helen sought to appease him. "I'd have turned to no one else but you anyway, Leonard."

"But I don't want you to feel that way now," he replied. "I want you to think only of yourself, Helen, and the promise that was made to your mother. Your life from now on may be far apart from mine. You mustn't be influenced by me, and what I have done to you."

"You cannot change it," Helen told him.

"But your grandfather may," Brent observed. "You are far too young to make important decisions that will effect your entire life. I am better informed than you are, my dear, and I know that anything you feel now will change."

Helen smiled with the superiority of youthful assurance. "My grandfather at least will have nothing to do with my decisions," she said.

And when Helen and Brent were shown into his private sitting room on the second floor he peered at them from dimming eyes with a feverish intensity.

Helen hesitated on the threshold, fighting to still the agitation that was causing her to tremble nervously. The room seemed to waver slightly and then her glance settled upon the aged man in the invalid's chair that was drawn close to a window.

the two men.

Mr. Cunningham waved the servant aside, dismissing him, and turned back to Brent. "Your business is important?" he queried, plainly striving to suppress some inner excitement.

"Quite," Brent replied, and then, without preamble: "It is in regard to your daughter's child—your granddaughter." As he spoke Brent kept his eyes upon Mr. Cunningham with an intent gaze. He saw him start, saw his hands flutter on the cane head and heard him draw a sharp breath.

"My granddaughter!" It was barely a whisper, rather a thought that lived for an instant upon the air.

"Yes," Brent said. "Are you interested?"

The light that burned suddenly in the eyes that Mr. Cunningham lifted to search his own was sufficient answer for Brent. "You may, if you like, meet her," he said.

NEW JERSEY YOUTHS TO HANG SEPT. 13

Walter W. Willmott, 21, and Mildred Morrison, 24, both of Elizabeth, N. J., are sentenced to hang Friday night, Sept. 13, at Mountville, W. Va., for the murder near Charleston of Frank Bowen, gasoline filling station agent.

Seeking to escape in Bowen's car, it was their terrific driving that caused a traffic officer to arrest them for speeding—and Bowen's body was found in the car. Efforts for a new trial have been denied—and only intervention from the governor of the state can now save them from a double hanging, although their hatred for each other led to demands for separate hangings.

A Strange Picture
The curtains of the past were parted, disclosing a picture sacred to memory when red-headed M. E. McLoughlin, the old content of the Courts, took his driver in hand and teed up in the qualifying round at Pebble Beach the other day.

The darting, dashing dervish of the courts, sweeping all opposition from his path by the fury of his attack; fighting, slashing, charging old Red Mac—and now he's chipping, putting, deliberating, hesitating. How has Red Mac the Mighty fallen!

A Bull in a China Shop
They called him the content of the courts. He was all of that. He came into tennis at a time when the game was most staid and conservative, even slovenly. Technicians dominated it. There were Pells and Dohertys and Wrights and Brookesses. Tennis was all very graceful and nice and slow.

Cross court lobs and tip-tapping, lovely lazy placements—very much a ladies' and gentlemen's pleasant and not too strenuous diversion was the tennis of that day. Into this picture burst McLoughlin like lightning into a herd of fat stallions.

He Just Fought

He knew little of their technique. The amenities of the game were Greek to him. McLoughlin merely fought. But how he did fight! By the fire of his spirit he beat them down, one by one. By the force of his power and audacity he awakened the sleepy tappers of the tennis world to the fact that they must fight, too. He changed tennis.

He gave drama to the game and life. He gave it personality. He won with unheard of technique, but he won. He would not lose. The imperturbable masters of the game? They looked sluggish against this flaming demon. The heroes, the supposedly invincible Brookesses, left-handed wizard from Australia? McLoughlin's fire put Brookess in the light of a Mother Hubbard pitching against the Athletics.

A Terrific Pace

No man could fight for long at the pace that Red Mac set. The tiger is terrible but it needs rest, too. In the end that hot spark of Fran Schmeling says Max is a good boy—he has supported her since his father died in 1923. Max's mother has a maid, a telephone and a radio now—she says Max never tasted wine, liquor or beer—When Carl Hubbell pitched his first game for the Giants, he had a new glove and there was so much oil on it that he couldn't control the ball—Dick Glendon says Jonas Ingram of the Navy was the greatest stroke that ever pulled an ear—Jack Dalton, the original Navy gun, stands stuffed in a glass case at Annapolis—When the Bobby Jones party stopped off to look at the Grand Canyon, a woman in the party asked a guide if the Canyon was really a work of nature entirely.

youth faded, and new hosts of tennis swept across his fighting figure. They finally bore down the Red Mac, but they had to fight his way to do it. At last he was thrown back because a new race of fighters came up in the tennis world and beat his ageing muscles to the punch.

Sport has no sadder spectacle than the old hero, with all the form and the face of the batter that was, going down to defeat because the spark is dead. It was that way with Dempsey at Philadelphia; with Jeffries at Reno; with Gans, and the others.

It is just a little queer to see the old Red Mac playing golf. It is the picture of an old sea captain who has laughed into the gales of the seven seas at their worst, an old sea captain playing with a child's tiny boat in a bathtub. We are just as glad we didn't see the Red Mac standing on the putting green. We prefer to keep the old picture.

Lady Remembered How Cardui Had Helped Once Before, So She Took It Again.

West Asheville, N. C.—"When I was about thirteen years old, I was weak and run-down," writes Mrs. T. J. Ballew, who lives on Oak Street, this city. "I was pale and under-weight. I took a couple of bottles of Cardui at that time. It built me up, and I was much better."

"When I was nineteen years old (this was after my marriage), I again had a breakdown. I was in miserable health. I was very weak. The least thing tired me. I only weighed 105 pounds. My color was bad."

"I remembered what Cardui had done for me once before, so I started taking it again. I gained until I weighed 127 pounds. I have a good appetite and feel fine. I certainly praise Cardui."

This well-known medicine is an extract of valuable medicinal herbs, and contains nothing harmful or injurious. It has been in use so long, its merit has been proved by the experience of thousands of women.

Cardui is for Over 50 Years a Cardoseptic, for hygienic reasons, should be used by women as a safe, effective detergent. 50 cts.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS . . . By Laufer

THE famous wrecking crew of the Philadelphia Athletics—Al Simmons, Jimmy Fox, Mickey Cochrane and Ben Miller—has been getting loads of credit for putting the team in its first world series since 1911. Which is as it should be.

The great pitching trio—Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw and Rube Walberg—has been and still is being given a big hand, which, of course, is also due them. Where would the A's be without this trio's great pitching?

But when you are analyzing the Mack machine for that winning ingredient, don't altogether overlook George "Mule" Haas, the efficient center fielder. Ever since Haas has been regularly stationed in the Athletic outfield, the team has played championship ball.

Last year Connie Mack decided to make his bid for the pennant by the addition of Ty Cobb to the club. At mid season it became evident to Mack his plans were going awry. Cobb and Speaker were slowing to a walk. The Yankees were going far out in front. Connie decided a drastic switch could do little harm. He benched Speaker and sent Haas out to the middle garden.

'MULE' HAAS

HE MEANS AS MUCH TO MACK'S MACHINE AS ANY ONE OF HIS FENCE-BUSTING WRECKING CREW....

HE PROVED TO BE THE RIGHT COG FOR CONNIE'S WINNING COMBINATION...

With Haas in the lineup, the Athletics started to win regularly, but it was too late to head off the Yankees. They came so close, however, they gave Junior Huggins heart trouble the last two weeks of the race.

Had Mack made the switch a bit earlier, he might have won his pennant one year sooner. But that is second guessing.

This year the Macks started in where they left off last fall and the race has never been close. By September 1, the team was in a position to coast. They should go into the series in 1st class condition if it helps a club to have no tough stretch bulsh.

ARKANSAS PHILOSOPHY

Arkansas Goes On Parade

BEGINNING October 7, the mineral, agricultural and industrial resources of this state will be placed on display in Arkansas' Show Window, the annual State Fair in Little Rock. Here, too, will be practical demonstrations of better methods doing almost everything—from pumping water on the farm to rearing healthier babies.

More than 200,000 people have visited these expositions in past years. Plans for 1929 predict an even more mammoth spectacle, justifying record-breaking attendance. Plan NOW to treat yourself to this trip.
